

DINAH FRANCIS

Having chosen music over art at school Dinah took up painting when daughter Hannah brought home some of her beautiful GCSE art work. After a slow start she now dedicates more time to her watercolours and since moving to the Dales 6 years ago has been inspired by the local landscape. After seeing boxing hares whilst walking along the banks of the river Ure she painted a series of hare portraits. Her current work includes foxes, lapwings, puffins and curlews as well as local village views.
